Country context (optional)

Please use this field to provide any relevant contextual or background information about the country's law, policy, and practice, or the stateless population, to help contextualise the information in the survey (optional question).

Belgium has a relatively good record on accession to relevant human rights instruments. The country is party to the 1954 and 1961 conventions on statelessness, but it entered declarations to the 1961 Convention, which limit the scope of some provisions to prevent statelessness, and it has not acceded to the relevant Council of Europe Conventions.

Some data on the stateless population is available and improvements have been made, but there are some remaining gaps. The Immigration Office reported 628 stateless people holding long-term residence permits (more than three months) as of 1 January 2024. However, many stateless people remain unregistered due to complex procedures and lack of awareness.

Statelessness may be determined through a judicial procedure, but recognition of statelessness by the courts does not automatically lead to a residence permit nor additional rights.

As of 1 September 2024, a new administrative procedure came into effect introducing for the first time, a residence permit on grounds of statelessness. This procedure involves some elements of statelessness determination, while the current judicial procedure is maintained. Introducing a residence permit for stateless people is welcome, however the new law contains several concerning features, including admissibility conditions that go beyond the 1954 Convention and UNHCR guidance, resulting in a complex and intricate mechanism that is not in line with Belgium's international obligations.

Gaps in safeguards to prevent the arbitrary detention of stateless people remain a concern, and stateless people released from detention are not provided with identification documents nor rights.

Existing safeguards to prevent and reduce statelessness established in Belgian law, including a provision to automatically grant nationality to otherwise stateless children born on the territory, currently face major issues in practice. The foundlings provision applies only to newborn children. There may be a risk of statelessness in adoption proceedings due to rules on loss and acquisition of Belgian nationality. Although all births should be registered in Belgium irrespective of parents' status, public servants must report undocumented people to the immigration authorities, which may prevent some undocumented people (among which stateless people) from registering their children's births. On loss and deprivation of nationality, there are safeguards to prevent statelessness in most cases, except where nationality was acquired through fraud.

Over winter 2024, a new practice has emerged based on Article 10 of the Belgian Nationality Code (conditional attribution of Belgian nationality to children born in Belgium in case of risk of statelessness): some children born in Belgium to Paraguayan parents do not obtain Belgian nationality because (1) their parents have committed - according to the Immigration Office - fraud, that is: parents without legal residence would give birth in Belgium allegedly only so that their children would have Belgian nationality in order to then be able to apply for legal residence based on family reunification (2) the children could easily obtain Paraguayan nationality through an 'administrative formality with the diplomatic authorities' (which is a condition set by the Belgian Nationality Code). This reasoning relies on an incorrect interpretation of the Code because (1) it misinterprets the principle fraus omnia corrumpit (i.e. the principle according to which the discovery of fraud invalidates a decision) and (2) it misinterprets the Paraguayan legislation which requires the parents of the child to settle in Paraguay prior to any application for nationality for the child.

Stateless Population Data

Item	Subtheme	Question	International Norms & Good Practice	Answer	Source
POP.1.a	Availability and sources	Does the State have a standardised 'stateless' category in its data collection systems (e.g. census)? Please list available figures for the total stateless population on the territory and describe how data is disaggregated (e.g. by sex, age, residence).	CEDAW, Gen. Rec. 32 (2014): States parties should gather, analyse and make available sex-disaggregated statistical data and trends. Council of the European Union, Conclusions on Statelessness (2015): Recognise the importance of exchanging good practices among Member States concerning the collection of reliable data on stateless persons as well as the procedures for determining statelessness. UNHCR, Global Action Plan to End Statelessness 2014-24 (2014): Improve quantitative and qualitative data on stateless populations. ISI, The World's Stateless (2014): States should strengthen measures to count stateless persons on their territory. International Recommendations on Statelessness Statistics (IROSS) (endorsed by UN Statistical Commission in 2023): States should use standardised definition of statelessness and consistent indicators for collecting statelessness data. Report of the UN Special Rapporteur on Violence against women and girls, nationality laws and statelessness (2023): States and relevant actors should collect rigorous and comparable data on stateless populations, including data disaggregated by sex, gender, age, and disability status, in accordance with the international recommendations on statelessness statistics and in consultation with relevant stakeholders.	Yes, there is a 'stateless' category in the National Registry in Belgium. The National Registry includes the Population Register (nationals in Belgium); the Foreigners Register (non-nationals in Belgium); the diplomatic and consular Registers (nationals abroad) and the Waiting Register (asylum seekers). On 1 January 2024 there were 628 people registered as stateless in the National Registry. This only includes people who have been recognised as stateless by the judicial procedure and issued a long-term residence permit. 239 were granted a residence permit for family-related reasons, 11 for work-related reasons, 62 were recognised refugees, 21 were granted a subsidiary protection status, and 295 were granted a residence permit for other reasons. Data is disaggregated by age and sex (see source). Data is not disaggregated by disability status. Note: statistics on nationality of asylum applicants (including stateless and 'undetermined nationality') are available monthly. As of 11 December 2024, six asylum applicants are registered as stateless and 375 as having undetermined nationality. The Justice Department publishes annual figures of pending and new applications as well as the number of decisions taken for a statelessness determination procedure before Family Courts (first instance) and Appeal Courts (appeal). The annual number of decisions taken is available in the same Tables (Data extracted on 22 March 2024). On 1 January 2023, 515 applications were pending before the Family Courts, and 179 new applications were filed (total 694 files). In 158 of these files, no activity has been registered for the last 3 years ('dormant files'). In 2023, 173 decisions were taken and in total 363 files were pending on 31 December 2023. On 1 January 2023, 400 appeals were pending before the Appeal Courts in statelessness cases and 48 new appeals were filed (total 448 cases). In 2023, 123 decisions were taken so in total 325 files were pending on 31 December 2023. In 2023, 10 stateless people were granted a residence right for humanitarian reasons (also 26 people with 'undetermined nationality' and 43 Palestinians). As of 11 December 2024, 11 stateless people (also six people with 'undetermined nationality' and 15 Palestinians) were granted a residence right for humanitarian reasons.	Immigration Office, Annual Statistics 2024 (Cartes pour étrangers et documents de séjour) Annexe DPI nationalités Bijlage VIB nationaliteiten 2008-2024 https://www.rechtbanken-tribunaux.be/sites/default/files/media/col/stat/2023/fr/tpi_familie_2024.pdf (Family Tribunal see Table 1.4.a Nature, p.23) https://www.rechtbanken-tribunaux.be/sites/default/files/media/col/stat/2023/fr/cour-appel_civil_2024.pdf (Appeal Courts see Table 1.3.a Nature de l'affaire, p. 31) Annual and monthly statistics on residence permit for humanitarian and medical reasons - see Séjour humanitaire ou médical autorisé 2010-2024 (Annexes détaillées)
POP.1.b		Do public authorities define data categories that may overlap (e.g. unknown nationality) or where stateless people might be more highly represented (e.g. Palestinian)? Please explain and provide any available figures.	As above	Yes, there is a data category ' undetermined nationality '. This includes people whose nationality cannot be determined at birth, people without identity documents from their country of origin and people of Palestinian origin. The Immigration office indicates in its 2019 Annual Report that measures have been taken to limit the number of people of Palestinian origin registered in the "undetermined nationality category". The figure may also include	Immigration Office, Annual Statistics 2024 (Carte pour étrangers et documents de séjour)

				applicants under the statelessness determination procedure who obtained a residence permit on other grounds. On 1 January 2024 there were 21,523 people registered as 'undetermined nationality' in the National Registry. People who declare themselves stateless or apply to be recognised as stateless without (yet) being recognised are not included in the 'stateless' category but are included in the 'undetermined' nationality category or in a previously registered nationality. There is also a category 'Palestine' (West-Bank and Gaza). On 1 January 2024 there were 9,821 people registered under the category 'Palestine' in the National Registry with a valid residence permit. People are registered either under the category 'undetermined nationality' or 'Palestine', therefore there is no risk of overlap. There should not be an overlap between people registered under the category 'Palestine' and 'stateless', as people registered as 'stateless' are only the ones recognised as such under the judicial procedure.	Immigration Office, Annual Statistics 2024 (Carte pour étrangers et documents de séjour) Immigration Office, Annual Statistics 2019 (Carte pour étrangers et documents de séjour)
POP.1.c		What is UNHCR's estimate for the stateless/at risk of statelessness population or population with undetermined nationality and what is the source for this estimate?	As above	According to UNHCR, in 2019 there were 11,208 people under its statelessness mandate in Belgium. In 2023, the figure provided is 936 stateless people, and 836 in 2024 as of mid-year. The significant reduction between 2019 and 2023 is explained in a note to the data, which states that the previous figure included people registered as 'undetermined nationality' by the Ministry of Interior, which was not clearly defined. So, people in this category have been removed from the statistics for stateless people in Belgium.	UNHCR, Refugee Data Finder: https://www.unhcr.org/refugee-statistics/download/?url=U1BT4v
POP.1.d		Have there been any surveys or mapping studies to estimate the stateless population in the country?	As above	The most up to date and complete mapping study is UNHCR, Mapping Statelessness in Belgium, October 2012.	UNHCR, Mapping Statelessness in Belgium, October 2012 See also "Demandeurs d'asile, réfugiés et apatrides en Belgique : un essai de démographie des populations demandeuses ou bénéficiaires d'une protection internationale" 2008
POP.1.e		Are there any other sources of estimates for the stateless population not covered by the above? Please list sources and figures.	As above	No.
POP.1.f		Are there issues with the reliability of data or indications that the stateless population may be over/under reported? If yes, please describe.	As above	Yes. Firstly, the use of the registration category 'undetermined nationality' in the official data is causing significant uncertainty as to the situation of people who are registered under this group, with regard to statelessness in particular. Secondly, the population registered in the National Register under the category 'stateless' only includes the population: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - recognised as stateless by a court and - holding a valid residence permit issued for a period of more than three months. Persons not covered by administrative data in the National Register include:	Myria Opinion to the Committee on the Interior, General Affairs and Civil Service Draft law No. 3487/1 amending the law of 15 December 1980 on access to the territory, residence, establishment and expulsion of foreigners, in order to regulate the right of residence of stateless persons (24 January 2019) UNHCR, Refworld Mapping Statelessness in Belgium, October 2012, para 108

				<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - persons who are undergoing a procedure to determine statelessness, who do not have a valid residence permit or have a residence permit issued for less than three months; - persons recognised as stateless who do not have a valid residence permit, - other persons who are stateless but who are not in a procedure and who do not have a valid residence permit or have a residence permit issued for less than three months.
POP.1.g		Please provide any available figures for stateless refugees and/or asylum-seekers and clarify if the State also counts these groups in figures for the stateless population (i.e. to avoid under/over-reporting).	As above. EASO/EUAA, Practical guide on registration (2021): States should collect information from applicants for international protection about their nationality(ies) and potential lack of nationality. When registering families, it is important to collect this data for each family member.	On 1 January 2024 there were 62 stateless refugees registered in the National Registry (included in the total figures of 628 people registered as 'stateless' in the National Registry (see POP.1.a). Asylum seekers are registered separately, outside the National Register, as required by EUROSTAT. This table shows the number of stateless people registered as asylum seekers in Belgium, per month. Caution is required when reading this table as the numbers are rounded to the nearest multiple of 5 (this is how the EUROSTAT table works, not requested by Belgium), which affects the result per month/per year. However, the rounding is smart and is done on the aggregate, so this technical characteristic has no impact on the ranking of Belgium at EU level. Asylum-seekers are registered in a separate registry (the Waiting Registry). There is a risk of overreporting, as a stateless asylum-seeker who is granted asylum will appear in both sections (stateless asylum-seekers and stateless refugee) but only during the year of the recognition).	Immigration Office, Annual Statistics 2019 Eurostat, Persons subject of asylum applications pending at the end of the month by citizenship, age and sex Monthly data (rounded)
POP.2.a	Stateless in detention data	Does the State record and publish figures on stateless people held in immigration detention? If yes, please provide.	UNHCR, Global Action Plan to End Statelessness 2014-24 (2014): Improve quantitative and qualitative data on stateless populations. CEDAW, Gen. But it is only through thorough bilateral dialogue with the authorities that the figures and the guidance on how to understand them can be accessed.

SDS.1.a	Definition of a stateless person	Is there a definition of a stateless person in national law? Do the definition and exclusion provisions align with the 1954 Convention? Please provide details.	1954 Convention : Articles 1(1) & 1(2).	There is no definition of a stateless person in Belgian law. The definition in the 1954 Convention (which has direct effect) is applied. SDS.2.a	Training	Is there training to inform different public authorities about statelessness? If yes, please provide details (e.g. who provides training to whom/how often?)	UNHCR Executive Committee, Conclusion No. 106 (LVII) (2006) : Requests UNHCR to actively disseminate information and, where appropriate, train government counterparts on appropriate mechanisms for identifying, recording, and granting a status to stateless persons. HRC, Resolution 53/16 on the right to a nationality (2023) : States should ensure the effective implementation of nationality laws, including through awareness-raising and publicity, and training of public officials, including judges and local leaders, that is gender-responsive and sensitive to race and diversity, informed by meaningful consultation and engagement with stateless leaders and communities and wider civil society.	UNHCR sporadically provides training to family court judges and public prosecutors (December 2017 and December 2018), and to local civil registrars (May 2016 and January 2017). UNHCR also provided training on statelessness as part of the implementation of the new law on the residence of stateless persons for protection officers from the Commissioner-General for Refugees and Stateless persons (CGRS) and Foreigner's Office workers in July 2024.	Response sought from UNHCR
SDS.2.b		Is there training for judges and lawyers on statelessness? If yes, please provide details (e.g. provider, frequency).	UNHCR, Good Practices Papers – Action 6 (2020) : Officials who may be in contact with stateless persons need to be trained to identify potential applicants for statelessness status and refer them to appropriate channels. UNHCR, Geneva Conclusions (2010) : It is recommended that States provide specialised training on nationality laws and practices, international standards and statelessness to officials responsible for making statelessness determinations. HRC, Resolution 53/16 on the right to a nationality (2023) : as above	UNHCR provides training to judges on statelessness in cooperation with the Institute for Judicial Training. There have been two trainings so far (December 2017 and December 2018). UNHCR sporadically organises training for lawyers (October 2014 and September 2017). NANSEN organises regular peer-support and exchange of information for lawyers specialised in immigration law including on statelessness (e.g., April 2019, December 2020, and May 2022, December 2023, April 2024 at the EMN Annual Policy Event and December 2024). SDS.11.a	Procedures in which statelessness can be identified and other routes to regularisation (Group 2)	If there is no dedicated SDP leading to a statelessness status, are there any procedures in which statelessness can be identified (e.g. partial SDPs with no status/rights attached, residence permit or naturalisation applications, refugee status determination, ad hoc procedures, etc.)?	ECHR: Article 8 ENS (2013): For SDPs to be effective, the determination must be a specific objective of the mechanism in question, though not necessarily the only one. ECtHR, Hoti v. Croatia (2018): [the State has a] positive obligation to provide an effective and accessible procedure or a combination of procedures enabling the applicant to have the issues of [their] further stay and status determined.	There is a judicial procedure through which a person can be determined to be stateless by one of six family courts. There are no specific procedural safeguards in place, and recognition of statelessness by the family courts does not result in automatic permission to stay nor any protection, although civil courts in some cases condemn the Belgian State to deliver a residence permit to people recognised stateless by the Family courts. The higher national courts (Constitutional Court, Court of Cassation and Council of State) have ruled in favour of a subjective right to residence for those recognised as stateless through the judicial procedure, provided they have involuntarily lost their nationality and they are not in a position to get a durable residence right in a country other than Belgium. As of 1 September 2024, a new law came into effect that introduces a specific procedure for permission to stay on the grounds of statelessness. This new law establishes a new administrative procedure to determine statelessness that leads to a permission to stay, while the current judicial procedure to determine statelessness is maintained. While introducing a residence permit for stateless people is welcome, this law contains several concerning features, including imposing conditions that go beyond the 1954 Convention and UNHCR guidance, and creating a complex and intricate mechanism that is not in line with Belgium's international obligations. Statelessness may also be identified during the asylum procedure. In practice, the Office of the Commissioner General for Refugees and Stateless Persons sometimes refers to the judicial procedure in its decision. SDS.11.b		Are there any other routes through which stateless people could regularise their stay and/or access their rights without their statelessness being identified or determined?	1954 Convention UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): It is implicit in the 1954 Convention that States must identify stateless persons to provide them appropriate treatment to comply with their Convention commitments.	People whose statelessness has not been determined by a court nor under the new administrative procedure can in theory apply for family reunification if they have family members in Belgium or for a permission to stay on humanitarian grounds. In practice, however, this will be difficult if they do not have identity and civil status documents and as there are no criteria set in law for humanitarian stay. In 2023, 10 stateless people were granted a residence right for humanitarian reasons (also 26 people with 'undetermined nationality' and 43 Palestinians). As of 11 December 2024, 11 stateless people (also six people with 'undetermined nationality' and 15 Palestinians) were granted a residence right for humanitarian reasons.	Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, art. 9bis, art. 10-12bis and 40-42 quarter. Annual and monthly statistics on residence permit for humanitarian and medical reasons - see Séjour humanitaire ou médical autorisé 2010-2024 (Annexes détaillées)
SDS.12.a	Access to procedures (Group 2)	Please provide details on how statelessness may be identified in other procedures, which authority is competent to examine and/or identify statelessness and evaluate appropriateness to the national context.	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): States may choose between a centralised procedure or one that is conducted by local authorities. Centralised procedures are preferable as they are more likely to develop the necessary expertise. UNHCR, Good Practices Papers – Action 6 (2020): It is important that examiners develop expertise while ensuring that the procedures are accessible. Efficient referral mechanisms should be established, while officials who may be in contact with stateless persons need to be trained to identify potential applicants for statelessness status and refer them to appropriate channels.	Examination of statelessness claims is conducted by one of six family courts. Before 2017, all first instance courts were competent to examine statelessness. The centralisation to six courts was aimed at specialisation of magistrates. However, the family courts have not yet acquired the necessary expertise in statelessness and nationality matters. Practice and chances of success of the application may vary from one court to another. To initiate a judicial procedure for the determination of statelessness, submissions must be made in writing, in the form of a unilateral petition, with the assistance of a lawyer, and in the language of the territorially competent court (i.e. Dutch, French, or German). Applications must take the form of a unilateral petition, which is very formalistic and requires several technical legal entries, such as the object of the petition and the jurisdiction. The qualified assistance of a lawyer is needed for the petition to have any chance of success. The family court applies the regular court fee, which is currently 165 EUR per applicant. A person with insufficient financial means may apply for an exemption from payment of fees. There is an automatic right of appeal, but the fees before the courts of appeal are currently 400 EUR. Applicants are not required to be lawfully staying on the territory, and there is no time limit to access to the judicial procedure. There is no timeframe set in law or policy for the procedure, and its duration seems to vary from one court to another, but generally appears to be long (one year on average). The fact that the Crown Prosecutor's Office does not have a deadline by which it is required to submit its opinion has been highlighted as one cause for delays.	Art. 572bis, 1° of the Judicial Code (substantive competence) Art. 632bis of the Judicial Code (territorial competence) Art.664-668 1026-1028, 1050 of the Judicial Code UNHCR, Mapping Statelessness in Belgium, p. 48-49, p. 61, recommendation 12 Cours et tribunaux Art. 691 Code des droits d'enregistrement, d'hypothèque et de greffe. Evidence from practitioners.

				Although only a very limited number of decisions are published, there is some evidence of errors in decision-making, notably regarding applicants of Palestinian origin. UNHCR may play a role in the procedure by monitoring and/or intervening in individual cases brought to its attention. Competent authorities are not authorised to initiate an SDP ex officio. There are no referral mechanisms even though the independent quasi-judicial body competent to grant international protection in Belgium is officially named "Commissioner-General for Refugees and Stateless persons" (CGRA/CGVS/CGRS). In accordance with the Immigration Act, the CGRS is the competent authority for stateless persons recognised as such by the family courts (as well as for recognised refugees). This means that they issue birth certificates, identity certificates etc. However, there is no legal basis for the issuance of "a certificate confirming the status of stateless person", nor is this certificate a condition for entry in the Foreigners Register. Registration is based on the residence permit when it is issued by the Immigration Office. For this reason, and from 2015 onwards, the CGRS no longer issues "certificates of confirmation of statelessness status". Statelessness may also be identified during the asylum procedure. It could lead to recognition of refugee status; however, NANSEN has no first-hand evidence of this. In addition, in practice, the Office of the Commissioner General for Refugees and Stateless Persons sometimes refers to the judicial procedure in its decisions. Under the new administrative procedure that came into effect on 1 September 2024, an application for admission to stay on the grounds of statelessness is submitted directly to the Immigration Office (IO) by registered mail. If the IO decides to take the application into consideration, an opinion is then requested from the Office of the Commissioner General for Refugees and Stateless Persons. On the basis of this opinion, the IO will take a decision on the stay. Applicants for the administrative procedure need to already have a previous lawful residence to be eligible (lawful residence of more than three months or lawful residence as an applicant for international protection), although they are not required to lawfully reside in Belgium at the time of the application. Under the administrative procedure, UNHCR's role of monitoring and/or intervening in individual cases brought to its attention is not included in the law (by opposition of what is prescribed in the law for international protection) so it will be left to the discretion of the UNHCR.	Court of Appeal Ghent, 20 April 2017 (in Dutch) Court of Appeal Brussels, 5 June 2018 (in Dutch) Court of Appeal Antwerp, 3 October 2018 (in Dutch) Responses sought from UNHCR Chambre des Représentants, Accord de gouvernement, 10 October 2014, p. 168 Commissariat Général aux Réfugiés et aux apatrides Application for statelessness, https://dofi.ibz.be/en/themes/international-protection/application-statelessness Loi du 10 mars 2024 modifiant la loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers concernant la demande d'admission au séjour pour apatridie

At registration, it is vital to collect information and detect possible cases of statelessness, but it is not appropriate to determine a person’s statelessness at the registration stage. Statelessness determination should be carried out only by a competent decision-making authority at an appropriate point in time following the final assessment of an asylum claim.	The family court is obliged to consider a statelessness claim made before it, but only if all the requested formalities are fulfilled. Other authorities are not obliged to consider a statelessness claim made within other procedures. Authorities cannot initiate the new administrative procedure ex officio. Without a residence permit, stateless people are excluded from social security and healthcare, and in principle from both forms of public relief (social integration and social aid). They are only entitled to urgent medical care, under the same conditions as undocumented migrants. Jurisprudence has been diverse on this issue, with some judges ordering social aid on varying legal grounds. The Belgian Constitutional Court held that the difference in treatment with regard to the right of residence between recognised refugees and recognised stateless persons who involuntarily lost their nationality and cannot obtain a legal and durable right of residence in another state, constitutes discrimination since different treatment is applied to persons who find themselves in comparable situations. 			Constitutional Court, this discrimination stems from the absence of any legislative provision granting persons recognised as stateless in Belgium a right of residence comparable to the one enjoyed by refugees. The Immigration Office has declared that recognised stateless persons who can show they satisfy the two requirements set out by the Constitutional Court (1. involuntarily lost their nationality and 2. cannot obtain a legal and durable right of residence in another State) receive a residence permit of limited duration. The Court of Cassation has held that stateless persons who satisfy the two requirements set out by the Constitutional Court do not automatically fall under the category of foreigners authorised to stay by law nor are they automatically equated to a recognised refugee. They still need to be granted leave to remain. In practice recognised stateless persons thus still need to submit a request for humanitarian stay. Under the administrative procedure, applicants are not granted any rights nor receive any certificate demonstrating their application. Therefore, if an applicant is unlawfully present in the country, their presence remains unlawful during the procedure and they are at risk of detention and expulsion. People issued a positive decision under the administrative procedure are granted admission to stay for a limited period of five years. After five years, the person is in principle admitted to stay for an unlimited period (permanent residence). People granted a residence permit under that procedure (A-card) are also granted the right to family reunification, which entails that the stateless person's spouse or registered partner as well as their minor children can be granted a right of residence in Belgium in principle, although this is not the case in practice, and conditions for granting this right are not harmonised with those for recognised refugees due to a gap in the new legislation on family reunification. They are also granted the right to healthcare, social security, education, housing, and the right to vote. The right to work will only be granted when secondary legislation (Royal Decree of 2 September 2018) will be amended but confirmation about when this will be done is pending. Regarding the issuance of a travel document and an identity document, it is still unclear. According to the Belgian Constitution, only courts can decide on the nationality or statelessness status of a person. Therefore, with only a positive administrative decision on the right of residence but no formal court decision on nationality status, which needs to be translation into a certain code into the National Register, the Foreign Affairs Office has no ground to deliver a passport to stateless people (when checking the code). Note: applicants rejected from the administrative procedure are denied access to a right of residence through the humanitarian regularisation procedure, which is available to stateless persons recognised as such under the judicial procedure.	étrangers, en vue de régler le droit de séjour des apatrides, DOC 54 3487/001 (déposée par Mme Nahima Lanjri, 1 March 2019, p. 2, unpublished Court of Cassation, 27 June 2016, No. S.15.0004.N/1, B.M. v. SDS.16.a	Temporary protection for people fleeing war (Group 2)	Does the State guarantee access to the territory to everyone fleeing Ukraine, regardless of nationality, documentation, or residence status? Please describe any barriers for stateless people, people with undetermined nationality, or undocumented people in accessing the territory.	EU Temporary Protection Directive (2001) EU Council Implementing Decision (2022) establishing the existence of a mass influx of displaced persons from Ukraine & European Commission, Operational guidelines ENS, Briefings on access to protection for stateless people fleeing Ukraine: Everyone fleeing the war in Ukraine should be guaranteed access to the territory.	There is a special registration process for people arriving in Belgium from Ukraine. People eligible for temporary protection, including stateless people, must register. People who are not eligible for temporary protection may apply for asylum. The European Commission confirms that a lack of travel documents or medical documents (certificate of vaccination, COVID-19 test) should not be an obstacle to entering the EU throughout the Ukraine crisis. In practice, Belgian authorities are applying a certain degree of flexibility in documentation requirements (e.g. accepting copies or expired documents), although they mostly proceed on a case-by-case basis. Stateless people and those at risk of statelessness are strongly recommended to seek legal advice as soon as possible (e.g., from NANSEN).
SDS.16.b		Does the State offer a temporary form of protection to stateless people, people with undetermined nationality, or undocumented people from Ukraine (through the EU Temporary Protection Directive or another mechanism)? Is temporary protection accessible to all stateless people who have fled Ukraine, regardless of their documentation status? If the State grants temporary protection more broadly than required by the EU TPD, or to people fleeing from another country other than Ukraine, please state so. Please describe any other barriers for stateless people, people with undetermined nationality, or undocumented people in receiving temporary protection, asylum, or other protection.	EU Temporary Protection Directive (2001) EU Council Implementing Decision (2022) establishing the existence of a mass influx of displaced persons from Ukraine & European Commission, Operational guidelines ENS, Briefings on access to protection for stateless people fleeing Ukraine: European countries must extend temporary forms of protection to all stateless people and those with undetermined nationality who cannot meet current eligibility requirements, due to their statelessness or documentation status. Lack of documentation should not prevent access to international protection or other forms of protection. European countries and the European Commission should be vigilant and take action to address any segregation, discrimination, and antigypsyism, and ensure equal access to rights and protection for all those fleeing Ukraine.	Belgium offers three routes to protection for people fleeing Ukraine, including eligible stateless people: refugee status, subsidiary protection, and temporary protection. Stateless people are only eligible for temporary protection if they were recognised as a stateless person in Ukraine or were beneficiaries of international protection or equivalent national protection in Ukraine. There is a certain degree of flexibility in documentation requirements, and the authorities proceed on a case-by-case basis. Beneficiaries of international protection and recognised stateless persons in Ukraine must provide proof of status in Ukraine and an identity document with a photograph (e.g. ID cards, expired passports, travel documents, etc.). They may also need to prove family relationship, cohabitation, or dependency if applying for protection together with another eligible person. Belgium does not seem to recognise travel documents issued by Ukraine to beneficiaries of international protection Stateless or undocumented people who are not eligible for temporary protection may apply for refugee status or subsidiary protection. The Belgian statistics office indicates that 86,046 refugees from Ukraine have registered for temporary protection in Belgium (as of July 2024), but the lack of disaggregated data makes it impossible to know how many of these are stateless people. Anecdotal evidence mentions that less than six stateless people were granted temporary protection. In 2022, 211 people with temporary protection were registered under "undetermined nationality". In 2023, there were 125 people in this category. Rights upon recognition of temporary protection include: right to reside (which has been extended until 4 March 2026); right to work; right to suitable accommodation; social welfare; medical care; education for children and temporary education for adults; transfers of family members to another Member State for reunification; right to apply for asylum at any time.	Immigration Office, 'Temporary Protection': https://dofi.ibz.be/en/themes/ukraine/temporary-protection Immigration Office, 'Stateless Persons and Third-country Nationals': https://dofi.ibz.be/en/themes/ukraine/temporary-protection/stateless-persons-and-third-country-nationals Info Ukraine website: https://info-ukraine.be/en/assistance-belgium UNHCR's Operational Data Portal on the Ukraine Refugee Situation: https://data.unhcr.org/en/situations/ukraine European Network on Statelessness, Country Briefing, Belgium: Information for stateless people and those at risk of statelessness fleeing Ukraine, June 2022: https://www.statelessness.eu/statelessness-ukraine-crisis STATBEL, Déplacés en provenance d'Ukraine, https://statbel.fgov.be/fr/visuals/deplaces-ukrainiens Office des étrangers, Chiffres - protection temporaire, https://dofi.ibz.be/fr/cijfers/protection-temporaire

Detention

Item	Subtheme	Question	International Norms & Good Practice	Answer	Source
DET.1.a	Immigration detention	Please provide a brief overview of whether immigration detention powers are provided for in law and applied in practice, and whether alternatives to detention are considered. Please provide the legal source(s) and, if available, refer to other publications and sources of information about the law, policy, and practice on immigration detention.	ICCPR: Article 9 ECHR: Article 5 EU Return Directive: Article 15 UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): Detention is a measure of last resort and can only be justified where other less invasive or coercive measures have been considered and found insufficient. UN General Assembly (2009): Calls upon all States to adopt alternative measures to detention. HRC, Report of the Special Rapporteur (2012): The obligation to always consider alternatives before resorting to detention should be established by law. International Detention Coalition (2015): Immigration detention should be used only as a last resort in exceptional cases after all other options have been shown to be inadequate in the individual case.	The Immigration Act provides for detention of asylum seekers at the border and on the territory, as well as detention on the territory of people subject to an order to leave the territory. Detention of asylum seekers at the border is systematic. According to the Immigration Act, detention should only be used as a measure of last resort, but practice suggests otherwise. No systematic individual assessment is carried out within the framework of the principles of proportionality and necessity prior to detention or extension of detention. The Immigration Act specifies that alternatives to detention will be established by Royal Decree, but no such Decree has been adopted. Article 7 provides that a place of residence can be designated for the time necessary to carry out the measure. In practice, no alternatives are considered prior to detention. Families with minor children can be held in "return houses" before being detained in closed family units, but this is not a real alternative to detention.	Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, articles 7, 27, 74/5 and 74/6 NANSEN Note 2018-1 Asile à la frontière et détention, Avril 2018 NANSEN Note 2018-2, La détention des enfants migrants, Août 2018 NANSEN, Juridische bijstand in detentie: verkennende bevindingen 2018, juli 2019 NANSEN Vulnérabilités en détention et accès à la protection internationale : rapport (2019-2020), novembre 2020 AIDA, Country Report: Belgium, Update 2023 Rapport alternatif de NANSEN asbl sur la mise en œuvre de la Convention contre la Torture et autres peines ou traitements cruels, inhumains ou dégradants en Belgique Conclusions et recommandations du Comité contre la torture, Observations finales, CAT/C/BEL/CO/4, 30 July 2021 Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, art. 7 and 74/6 Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, art. 7 and 74/9 European Migration Network, The use of detention and alternatives to detention in international protection and return procedures (Belgium), 2022 CIRE, Les alternatives à la détention des migrants, une réelle alternative?, 2020 MOVE, Vade Mecum pour la défense juridique des étrangers en centre de détention administrative - Outils pratiques pour les praticiens en droit des étrangers, novembre 2023

DET.1.b		Does a proposed country of removal need to be identified before a person is detained for removal? Please describe the situation in law and in practice.	ICCPR: Repeated attempts to expel a person to a country that refuses to admit them could amount to inhuman or degrading treatment (Article 7). ECtHR, Auad v. Bulgaria (2011): In cases of detention with a view to deportation, lack of clarity as to the destination country could hamper effective control of the authorities' diligence in handling the deportation. EU Return Directive: Any detention shall only be maintained as long as removal arrangements are in progress and executed with due diligence.	In principle, yes. But a practice has been developed according to which a person can be detained for removal based on an initial (temporary) order to leave the territory with a detention measure in which no country for removal has been identified (and no Article 3 ECHR test has been carried out.) When the person's nationality has been identified and the Art. 3 ECHR test has been carried out, a new order to leave the territory with detention measure is then delivered. The latter decision contains the actual 'removal decision' in which the country of removal is identified. At the border, people detained upon arrival are returned in application of the Chicago Convention. The Immigration Office always delivers upon arrival an Annex 11 (a 'refoulement order'). If an asylum application is filed, the enforceability of Annex 11 is suspended until a final decision. In case the asylum application is dismissed, Annex 11 is reinstated. There is no mention in Annex 11 of the country of removal to which the person will actually be returned. The only 'geographical' mention is the origin, i.e. the country in which the person boarded a flight to Belgium. In practice, however, people are informed of their destination when they receive their plane ticket. This does not rule out refoulement by ricochet to a subsequent destination. In 2023, three stateless people and two people of 'undetermined nationality' were returned from the Belgian border. In 2024, as of 11 December 2024, one stateless person and two people of 'undetermined nationality' were returned from the Belgian border	Conseil du Contentieux des Étrangers/ Raad voor Vreemdelingenbetwistingen, 1 October 2018, nr. 210383 Conseil du Contentieux des Étrangers, 24 December 2018, nr. 214610 See Immigration Office, Annexes détaillées, Eloignements effectifs, statistiques nationales
DET.1.c		Is there a clear obligation on authorities to release a person when there is no reasonable prospect of removal? Please describe the situation in law and in practice.	EU Return Directive: When it appears that a reasonable prospect of removal no longer exists, detention ceases to be justified and the person concerned shall be released immediately. UN Working Group on Arbitrary Detention (2018): When the obstacle for identifying or removal of persons in an irregular situation from the territory is not attributable to them, the detainee must be released to avoid potentially indefinite detention from occurring, which would be arbitrary. ECtHR, Auad v. Bulgaria (2011), Mikolenko v. Estonia (2009), Mardonshoyev v. Russia (2019), Gashkov and Satirov v. Russia (2022)	Yes. The Immigration Act provides that detention can only be extended if the necessary steps for removal have been taken within seven days of the deprivation of liberty, if they are pursued with due diligence and if there is a reasonable prospect of removal within a reasonable time.	Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, art. 7
DET.2.a	Identification of statelessness	Is statelessness juridically relevant in decisions to detain? Please describe how (risk of) statelessness is identified and whether referral to an SDP is possible from detention.	ECtHR, Auad v. Bulgaria (2011) ECtHR, Mikolenko v. Estonia (2009): Detention may only be justified as long as deportation proceedings are being conducted with due diligence. UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): Routine detention of individuals seeking protection on the grounds of statelessness is arbitrary. CMW, General comment No. 5 (2021): States should avoid detaining migrants who have specific needs, which includes stateless persons. States should also be aware that stateless persons find themselves in a vulnerable situation, given that consular assistance and protection are unavailable due to their status. Statelessness determination procedures are essential, given that the lack of a country of nationality to be returned to leaves stateless persons at higher risk of arbitrary and indefinite detention.	There is no dedicated mechanism in place to identify stateless persons or persons at risk of statelessness. In Belgium, at the border, routine detention of individuals seeking international protection including on the ground of statelessness is the rule. Statelessness could be relevant in decisions to extend detention, if there is no reasonable prospect of removal, but practice suggests otherwise. Referral to the judicial procedure to determine statelessness is possible in theory, but difficult in practice because of the long delays to obtain a court date. In addition, the judicial procedure has no suspensive effect, so the person could be removed before a decision is made.	"Asile à la frontière et détention", NANSEN Note 2018/1, avril 2018

			Equal Rights Trust, Guidelines (2012): States must identify stateless persons within their territory or subject to their jurisdiction as a first step towards ensuring the protection of their human rights. ICJ, Migration and International Human Rights Law (2014): The detention of stateless persons can never be justified when there is no active or realistic progress towards transfer to another State.
DET.2.b		Is there a definition of vulnerability in law? If yes, does it explicitly include statelessness? If not, please note whether statelessness is considered to be a factor increasing vulnerability.	PICUM, Preventing and Addressing Vulnerabilities in Immigration Enforcement Policies (2021): Statelessness should be explicitly included in the definition of vulnerability. Vulnerability should always be determined and assessed on an individual basis.	Vulnerability is not defined in the law, which only lists different categories of vulnerable persons. Statelessness is not mentioned among those categories.	Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, art. 1, 12°
DET.2.c		Are individual vulnerability assessments carried out before a decision to detain (or soon after)?	ENS, Protecting Stateless Persons From Arbitrary Detention (2015): Arbitrary and disproportionately lengthy detention can ensue when the particular vulnerabilities of stateless people are not addressed. EU Return Directive: Article 16(3) EU Return Handbook (2017): Attention should be paid to the specific situation of stateless persons. Council of the European Union, Guidelines to promote and protect the enjoyment of all human rights by LGBTI persons (2013): European entities should assess the situation of LGBTI persons in detention. PICUM, Preventing and Addressing Vulnerabilities in Immigration Enforcement Policies (2021): There should be a clear legal obligation to screen and assess individuals' vulnerability before a decision to detain is taken and before individuals are placed into situations of deprivation or restriction of liberty.	No, there is no mechanism in place to assess vulnerability prior to the detention decision.	NANSEN, "Kwetsbaarheid in detentie: verkennende bevindingen"; 4 June 2019 NANSEN, Vulnérabilités en détention. Motivation des titres de détention, November 2020
DET.2.d		Are stateless people detained in practice?	As above.	Yes	Point of no return. The futile detention of unreturnable migrants", January 2014, p. 26-28
DET.3.a	Procedural safeguards	Are there adequate procedural safeguards in place for individuals in immigration detention (e.g. maximum period of detention, automatic release at the end, decisions in writing, regular periodic reviews, judicial oversight, legal aid, etc.)?	ICCPR: Article 9(4) ECHR: Article 5(4) EU Return Directive: Articles 12, 13 and 15(5) HRC, Report of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention (2010): A maximum period of detention must be established by law and upon expiry the detainee must be automatically released. CMW, General comment No. 5 (2021): States parties are obligated to adopt legislative and other measures, allocate adequate resources, and provide relevant training to comply with the CMW. There should be a maximum period for immigration detention established in legislation, with automatic release at the end of that period, and which precludes re-detention. States should also be aware that stateless persons find themselves in a vulnerable situation, given that consular assistance and protection are unavailable due to their status. UNHCR, Detention Guidelines (2012): To guard against arbitrariness, maximum periods of detention should be set in national law.	Yes. Detention is permitted for an initial period of two months that can be prolonged by two months when the necessary steps have been taken to remove the person within seven working days after detention, when the steps are continued with due diligence and when removal is still possible within a reasonable period of time. The detention can be prolonged for another month by the Minister. The detention cannot exceed five months except in cases of public order or national security, detention cannot exceed eight months. Release is automatic once the maximal period of detention has expired. There is no automatic, periodic review of detention before a court or independent body, unless the detention is prolonged to five months by the Minister, in which case the lawfulness of the extension must be reviewed by the court. Detainees have access to a court to challenge their detention, but a qualified lawyer is needed. Judicial review is limited to the lawfulness of detention (not the appropriateness) and the competent courts are not necessarily specialised in immigration law.	Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, art. 7 Loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers, art. 71-74 Report by Nils Muiznieks, Commissioner for Human Rights of the Council of following his visit to Belgium from 14 to 18 September 2015, 28 January 2016, §30 UNHCR, Accompagnement juridique des demandeurs de protection internationale en Belgique, September 2019 General policy note (asylum and migration), 4 November 2020

			UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): Judicial oversight of detention is always necessary and detained individuals need to have access to legal representation, including free counselling for those without means. UNGA, Body of Principles (1988): Anyone who is arrested shall be informed at the time of the reason for their arrest. Equal Rights Trust, Guidelines (2012): Stateless detainees shall receive their order of detention in writing and in a language they understand. To avoid arbitrariness, detention should be subject to automatic, regular and periodic review throughout the period of detention, before a judicial body independent of the detaining authorities. Detention should always be for the shortest time possible. International Commission of Jurists, Migration and International Human Rights Law: A Practitioners' Guide (2014): The authorities shall ensure that sufficient information is available to detained persons in a language they understand on the nature of their detention and reasons for it. ECtHR, Kim v. Russia (2014): The purpose of Article 5(4) ECHR is to guarantee to persons who are detained the right to judicial supervision of the lawfulness of the measure. ECtHR, Mardonsheyev v. Russia (2019): The length of the detention should not exceed that reasonably required for the purpose pursued.	The Belgian Government in office since September 2020 plans to transfer the competence of reviewing detention decisions from the judiciary to the Conseil du Contentieux des Étrangers (CCE) and to allow the court to examine the appropriateness of detention. The Royal Decree on the functioning of the closed centres states that the director of the closed centre should inform the detainee of the possibility to appeal the detention decision. The Royal Decree on access to the territory, stay, establishment and removal of foreigners determines the decision and form that should be delivered to the foreigner in case of detention with purpose of removal. In practice individuals receive a written decision informing them of the reasons of their detention. Sometimes, in cases of prolongation of detention, this decision is delivered belatedly. Free legal aid is available for detained people, both at first instance and on appeal. There is a presumption of insufficient means of subsistence. On 20 July 2024, a law for a proactive return policy came into force. This law introduces the obligation for the foreigner to cooperate in the return process, strengthened the individual follow-up of foreigners who have been ordered to leave the territory, clarified the concept of "absconding", extended the time limit to transfer an applicant towards the Member State responsible for the examination of the application, expanded the list of competent escorts, and legally anchored the ban on retaining families with minor children in closed centres.	Royal Decree 2 August 2002, art. 17. Royal Decree 10 October 1981, art. 110ter decies Judicial Code, Art. 508/13/1 Loi du 12 mai 2024 modifiant la loi du 15 décembre 1980 sur l'accès au territoire, le séjour, l'établissement et l'éloignement des étrangers et la loi du 12 janvier 2007 sur l'accueil des demandeurs d'asile et de certaines autres catégories d'étrangers sur la politique de retour proactive, https://www.ejustice.just.fgov.be/eli/loi/2024/05/12/2024006654/justel
DET.3.b	Are detainees provided with information on their rights, contact details of legal advice and support providers, and guidance on how to access an SDP?	Equal Rights Trust, Guidelines (2012): Detaining authorities are urged to provide stateless detainees with a handbook in a language and terms they understand, containing information on all their rights and entitlements, contact details of organisations which are mandated to protect them, NGOs and visiting groups and advice on how to challenge the legality of their detention and their treatment as detainees.	Yes. Information leaflets are available in detention centres. Information is also provided during the intake upon arrival in the closed centre. In practice this is not effective due to lack of use of interpreters. DET.3.c	Are there guidelines in place governing the process of re-documentation and ascertaining entitlement to nationality for the purpose of removal?	Equal Rights Trust, Guidelines (2012): The inability of a stateless person to cooperate with removal proceedings should not be treated as non-cooperation. ENS, Protecting Stateless Persons From Arbitrary Detention (2015): The detaining state should have rules in place that govern the process of re-documentation and/ or ascertaining entitlement to nationality.	There are no general guidelines in place. The process of re-documentation and ascertaining entitlement to nationality is ad hoc, based on practices of the relevant consular authorities. Based on an Act of 12 May 2024 (which came into force on 20 July 2024) any foreigner has a duty to cooperate with the Immigration Office to ensure their efficient deportation. This includes a duty to "cooperate in identifying them and any accompanying family members, by providing the information needed to establish or verify identity, in particular details of surname and forename, nationality, place and date of birth, country(ies) of origin and/or previous residence, travel itineraries, travel documents and biometric data". The duty to cooperate can only be violated if non-fulfilment of the departure obligation is purely due to one's own behaviour. Failure or compliance will be assessed mainly based on attitude and actions taken. Failure to comply can be sanctioned with preventive measures or detention in a detention centre (for adults) or a residential unit if it is suspected that a less coercive measure would not be effective. DET.4.a	Protections on release	Are people released from detention issued with identification documents (including confirmation of their statelessness status) and protected from re-detention?	1954 Convention: Article 27 UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): Being undocumented cannot be used as a general justification for detention. CMW, General comment No. 5 (2021): There should be a maximum period for immigration detention established in legislation, with automatic release at the end of that period, and which precludes re-detention. Statelessness determination procedures are essential, given that the lack of a country of nationality to be returned to leaves stateless persons at higher risk of arbitrary and indefinite detention. Detaining stateless persons when there is no real prospect of removal would render the detention arbitrary, and the detained stateless person must therefore be immediately released. ENS, Protecting Stateless Persons From Arbitrary Detention (2015): State parties to the 1954 Convention have an obligation to provide stay rights to stateless people who have been released from detention. Equal Rights Trust, Guidelines (2012): Released stateless detainees should be provided with appropriate documentation and stay rights suitable to their situation.	No. However, based on an Act of 12 May 2024 (which came into force 20 July 2024) any foreigner has a duty to cooperate with the Immigration Office to ensure their efficient deportation. DET.5.a	Return and readmission agreements	Is statelessness considered a juridically relevant fact in any bilateral readmission and/or return agreements? Please also describe whether the child's right to a nationality, and their enjoyment of other fundamental rights in the country of return, are taken into consideration before a decision to return a child is made.	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): Efforts to secure admission or readmission may be justified but these need to take place subsequent to a determination of statelessness. UNCRC, MKAH v Switzerland, no 95/2019 (2021): The State in which a stateless child applies for international protection has an obligation under Article 7 CRC to consider whether, if the child was returned to another country, their right to a nationality would be fulfilled (as well as other rights under the CRC).	Belgium has entered into readmission agreements as an EU MS, a BENELUX MS, and as a self-standing State. There is generally a clause addressing stateless people in European agreements but not necessarily in Benelux agreements. This will depend on the situation of the country's nationals. For example, it was important for the agreement with Kazakhstan. For the agreement with Kosovo too, there are persons declared stateless in Belgium, but for the Kosovar authorities, they are not stateless. Belgium also makes regular use of readmission MoU's that are not public: the Belgian MoUs and their European equivalents have different names (mostly "declarations"). At the European level, these are generally short (1-2 pages) and concise texts. At the Belgian level on the other hand, they are quite comprehensive. These documents are negotiated between two administrations or ministries and have no legal value - every party can withdraw from it whenever they want. The Belgian Immigration Office rejected a request for consultation, made under Article 6, §1, 3° of the Law of 11 April 1994 on the publicity of administrative acts. There is no systematic provision on stateless people in the non-public MoU's. PRS.1.a	Naturalisation	In what timeframe do stateless people who are residing on the territory acquire the right to apply for naturalisation, and how does this compare to others with a foreign nationality?	1954 Convention: Article 32 UNHCR, Good Practices Papers – Action 6 (2020): It is recommended that States Parties facilitate, as far as possible, the naturalisation of stateless persons. CoE Committee of Ministers, Recommendation No. R (99) 18 (1999): Each State should facilitate the acquisition of its nationality by stateless persons lawfully and habitually resident on its territory. ENS (2013): The main benchmark is if there is any preferential treatment for stateless people compared to the general rules applied to those with a foreign nationality. Report of the UN Special Rapporteur on Violence against women and girls, nationality laws and statelessness (2023): States should lower legal and practical hurdles to citizenship and establish pathways for naturalisation that are equally accessible to women and men.	Stateless people can apply for naturalisation through Parliament after two years of lawful residence if their right of residence is of unlimited duration. There is no legal provision organising the transition between the humanitarian residence permit (one year, renewable) and any residence for an unlimited duration. Only changing from humanitarian to another status (e.g. family reunification, refugee status etc.) will allow stateless people access to residence of unlimited duration. In theory, after renewing a one-year humanitarian permit five times, a stateless person could apply for unlimited residence and naturalisation, but there are no criteria set in law/policy for a one-year permit to be transferred to unlimited stay. In the facilitated parliamentary procedure, residence is the only requirement, but in practice, language and integration requirements are applied at the discretion of the competent parliamentary commission. As most statuses only foresee a right of residence of unlimited duration after five years, the facilitated regime is hardly ever applied. Stateless people can apply for a specific procedure for permission to stay on the grounds of statelessness. The person who gets a positive decision from the Immigration Office will get an admission to stay for a limited period of five years is granted. After five years, the individual is in principle admitted to stay for an unlimited period (permanent residence). Stateless people can also apply for nationality through the regular procedure, after five years of lawful residence and if their right of residence is of unlimited duration. Stateless persons (like other foreigners) will have to prove economic and social integration as well as knowledge of one of Belgium's national languages. There is a fee of 150 EUR per request that applies to adults equally, including when they are stateless.	Art. 19 §2 of the Belgian Nationality Code Art. 12bis of the Belgian Nationality Code Service fédéral finances See Myria, Devenir Belge, procédures d'acquisition de la nationalité, 2016

Article 10 al. 1 of the BNC provides that a child born in Belgium is Belgian if they would otherwise have no other nationality at any moment before they reach the age of 18 or are "emancipated" (a minor older than 15 years old for whom the consequences of the minority (incapacity to act and parental authority) are partially lifted)). Article 10 al. 4 of the BNC specifies that such Belgian nationality acquired will only be lost upon acquisition of another nationality before the child is 18 or "emancipated". Since August 2023, the Immigration Office has exchanged correspondence with several municipalities in Belgium to withdraw the Belgian nationality of children born in Belgium to Palestinian parents who had acquired it on the basis that they were otherwise stateless (under Article 10 of the Belgian Nationality Code (CBN)). Their rationale is that these children have Palestinian nationality, and the Immigration Office is concerned that, if granted Belgian nationality, so-called 'abuses' of the family reunification procedure could take place. This is despite the fact that it is the civil registrar of the municipalities and, in the event of disagreement over the decision, the courts who are the competent authorities under Article 10 of the CBN. Indeed, the Constitution makes nationality-related issues the exclusive competency of the judiciary. The exclusive competence of the civil registrar to grant nationality, and of the public prosecutor to provide legal support to civil registrars, was reiterated by the Federal Ombudsman in a recommendation of January 2024. Over winter 2024, a new practice has emerged based on Article 10 of the Belgian Nationality Code (conditional attribution of Belgian nationality to children born in Belgium in case of risk of statelessness): some children born in Belgium to Paraguayan parents do not obtain Belgian nationality because (1) their parents have committed - according to the Immigration Office - fraud, that is : parents without lawful residence would give birth in Belgium allegedly only so that their children would have Belgian nationality in order to then be able to apply for legal residence based on family reunification (2) the children could easily obtain Paraguayan nationality through an 'administrative formality with the diplomatic authorities' (which is a condition set by the Belgian Nationality Code). This reasoning relies on an incorrect interpretation of the Code because (1) it misinterprets the principle fraus omnia corrumpit (i.e. the principle according to which the discovery of fraud invalidates a decision) and (2) it misinterprets the Paraguayan legislation which requires the parents of the child to settle in Paraguay prior any application for nationality for the child.	Art. 10 of the Belgian Nationality Code Loi du 6 décembre 2022 visant à rendre la justice plus humaine, plus rapide et plus ferme Circulaire relative aux modifications du Code de la nationalité belge introduites par la loi du 27 décembre 2006 portant des dispositions diverses, 25 May 2007 UNHCR, Mapping Statelessness in Belgium, para 506 EMN Ad-Hoc Query on Joint ad-hoc query COM & LU EMN NCP on statelessness: minors born in exile and unaccompanied minors (part 2), MYRIA, L'intérêt de l'enfant est parfois ignoré dans l'accès à la nationalité belge (2023) Wautelet, P. PRS.2.b		Is the provision for otherwise stateless children to acquire nationality automatic or non-automatic (i.e. by application)?	UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : The 1961 Convention provides Contracting States with two alternatives for granting nationality to otherwise stateless children born in their territory: either automatic acquisition upon birth or upon application.	The provision for otherwise stateless children to acquire nationality is automatic (by operation of the law). However, Art. 4 BNC provides that proof of Belgian nationality is provided by proving that the conditions and formal requirements imposed by Belgian law have been met. In practice the burden of proof lies with the applicant's legal representative(s).	Art. 10, al 1 of the Belgian Nationality Code

			ENS, No Child Should Be Stateless (2015) : The 1961 Convention and the European Convention on Nationality oblige the conferral of nationality to otherwise stateless children born on the territory. The optimal method is to grant nationality automatically at birth.	Article 10 al.1 was recently amended and now provides that the child's legal representative must give all the relevant document to the civil registrar. In case of doubt about the child's lack of nationality, the law now provides that the civil registrar must seek the opinion of the King's prosecutor.	Loi du 6 décembre 2022 visant à rendre la justice plus humaine, plus rapide et plus ferme
PRS.2.c		Are parents provided with information about their child's nationality rights and relevant procedures, including where the child would otherwise be stateless or has undetermined nationality?	UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : Contracting States are obliged to provide detailed information to parents of children who would otherwise be stateless or of undetermined nationality about the possibility of acquiring the nationality, how to apply and about the conditions which must be fulfilled. If the child concerned can acquire the nationality of a parent immediately after birth, States that opt to not grant nationality to children in these circumstances must assist parents in initiating the relevant procedure with the authorities of their State or States of nationality.	No.
PRS.2.d		Is it a requirement that the parents are also stateless for the otherwise stateless child to acquire nationality?	UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : The test is not an inquiry into whether a child's parents are stateless. ENS, No Child Should Be Stateless (2015) : Only allowing access to nationality for stateless children whose parents are stateless fails to account for the circumstance where the parents hold a nationality but are unable to pass this on.	No.
PRS.2.e		Are stateless children required to prove they cannot access another nationality to acquire the nationality of the country of birth? If yes, please describe how this is determined in practice.	UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : A Contracting State cannot avoid the obligations to grant its nationality to a person who would otherwise be stateless based on its own interpretation of another State's nationality laws. The burden of proof must be shared between the claimant and the authorities, but in the case of children the State assumes a greater share of the burden of proof. Decision-makers must consider Articles 3 & 7 CRC and adopt an appropriate standard of proof. Special procedural considerations to address the acute challenges faced by children in communicating basic facts about their nationality should be respected. Human Rights Committee, D.Z. v. Netherlands (2020) : The burden of proof must be shared between the claimant and the authorities of the contracting State to obtain evidence and to establish the facts as to whether an individual would otherwise be stateless.	Art. 10 al. 2 BNC stipulates that the child will not be Belgian if they can obtain another nationality by their parent(s) or legal guardian(s) initiating administrative measures before the diplomatic or consular authorities of the country of either parent. The Constitutional Court upheld art. 10 al. 2, but made two clarifications: 1. The Court emphasised that it must be deduced from art. 10 al. 2 that the child must have the right to acquire the other nationality and that this would be endangered should such an acquisition be subject to discretionary application by the authorities representing the foreign state. 2. The Court noted that art. 10 al. 2 constitutes an exception to the rule and must for this reason be restrictively interpreted. It held that this provision would not apply if the parents found themselves unable to apply to the diplomatic or consular authorities of their country of origin, as is notably the case for parents recognised as refugees The Circular from the Minister of Justice of 25 May 2007 on the application of the modified Article 10 gives examples of situations where it would be impossible for parents to take the necessary measures for their child to obtain a nationality. These include parents who have sought asylum whose procedure is ongoing and parents who have been recognised as refugees or granted subsidiary protection. Formerly registered asylum seekers whose applications have been rejected, will not be exempted from the administrative steps to have their child recognised by the representative authorities of their country, unless the time limit for registration has lapsed, in which case the child will be granted Belgian nationality. 				The authority responsible for assessing whether a child born in Belgium would be stateless if they do not acquire Belgian nationality is the civil registrar of the municipality of the parents' place of habitual residence. In practice the civil registrar will often seek advice from the King's prosecutor. According to the Nationality Service and Civil Registrars in principle the burden of proof lies with the applicant. In practice the approach is often more collaborative, in that the Nationality Service (in its advice) or the Civil Registrars will detail any additional elements of proof that might be required. In exceptional cases the Nationality Service will make enquiries with consular authorities. 			children born in its territory, irrespective of residency status, have access to nationality without any conditions. ECN: Article 6(2)(b)
PRS.2.g		Are the parents of a stateless child required to fulfil a period of residence for the child to be granted nationality? If yes, please specify length and if this must be legal residence.	Committee on the Rights of the Child, Concluding observations on Czech Republic (2011) : The outcome of an application by the parents of a child born on the territory should not prejudice the right of the child to acquire the nationality of the State. ENS, No Child Should Be Stateless (2015) : Demanding that the child or their parents reside lawfully on the territory is prohibited by the 1961 Convention.	There is no requirement for the parents to fulfil a period of residence.	Art. 10 of the Belgian Nationality Code
PRS.2.h		What are the age limits and fees (if any) for making an application for nationality for a stateless person born on the territory?	1961 Convention : Article 1(2) UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : Contracting States need to accept applications lodged at a time beginning not later than the age of 18 and ending not earlier than the age of 21. Where Contracting States grant nationality to individuals who would otherwise be stateless upon application, they are encouraged to accept such applications free of charge. ENS, No Child Should Be Stateless (2015) : Closing the window of opportunity to apply for a nationality has the effect of leaving it in the hands of parents to take the necessary steps to secure a nationality for their child.	The BNC does not stipulate any age limits. A child born in Belgium is Belgian ex lege if they would otherwise be stateless at any moment before they reach the age of 18 or are “emancipated”. As long as it can be established that the child would have been stateless before the age of 18, there is no reason not to apply the safeguard after the age of 18. Application in practice is however unknown. No federal fee applies for minor children. Some municipalities however request the payment of an administrative fee. PRS.2.i		Are there specific provisions to protect the right to a nationality of children born to refugees?	UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : Where the nationality of the parents can be acquired through a registration or other procedure, this will be impossible owing to the very nature of refugee status which precludes refugee parents from contacting their consular authorities. UNHCR, Best Interests Procedure Guidelines: Assessing and Determining the Best Interests of the Child (2021) : The best interests principle applies to all children within the territory of the State, irrespective of their status.	The Belgian Constitutional Court emphasised that art. 10 al. 2 constitutes an exception to the rule and must for this reason be restrictively interpreted. It held that this provision would not apply if the parents found themselves unable to apply to the diplomatic or consular authorities of their country of origin, as is notably the case for parents recognised as refugees. The Circular from the Minister of Justice of 25 May 2007 on the application of the modified Article 10 gives examples of situations where it would be impossible for parents to take the necessary measures for their child to obtain a nationality. These include parents who have sought asylum whose procedure is ongoing and parents who have been recognised as refugees or granted subsidiary protection. Formerly registered asylum seekers whose application have been rejected, will not be exempted from the administrative steps to have their child recognised by the representative authorities of their country, unless the time limit for registration has lapsed, in which case the child will be granted Belgian nationality. PRS.3.a	Foundlings	Are foundlings granted nationality automatically by law? If not automatic, please describe the procedure.	1961 Convention : Article 2 ECN: Article 6(1)(b)	Article 10 al. 3 of the BNC provides that a new-born child found in Belgium is presumed to be born in Belgium, until proven otherwise. PRS.3.b		Is there an age limit (e.g. ‘new-born’ or ‘infant’) in law or practice specifying when a foundling would qualify for nationality?	UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : At a minimum, the safeguard should apply to all young children who are not yet able to communicate information about the identity of their parents or their place of birth.	In its declaration concerning Article 2 of the 1961 Convention, the Belgian Government declared that, for Belgium, the category of “foundlings” concerns found children who are believed to be new-born. There is no readily available information on how this is implemented in practice.	United Nations Treaty Collection HCR, Commentaires du Haut Commissariat des Nations Unies pour les réfugiés relatifs à la proposition de loi 0476/010 du 22 juin 2011 modifiant le Code de la nationalité belge afin de rendre l’acquisition de la nationalité belge neutre du point de vue de l’immigration, Amendement N° 124 de Mme Van Cauter et consorts, 4 August 2011, p. 9.
PRS.3.c		Can nationality be withdrawn from foundlings if this leads to statelessness?	UNHCR, Guidelines on Statelessness No. 4 (2012) : Nationality acquired by foundlings may only be lost if it is proven that the child possesses another nationality.	Nationality can only be withdrawn from foundlings upon acquisition of another nationality before the child is 18 or “emancipated”.	Art. 10, al.4 of the Belgian Nationality Code

This is automatic if either the child or one of the adoptive parents were born in Belgium, or if the child has not acquired the nationality of any other country (safeguard against statelessness). It is by declaration if neither the child nor the parent was born in Belgium, in which case, the parent must make a declaration within five years after the adoption takes effect and before the child reaches the age of 18. This is only possible if at least one of the parents has lawful residence status or is registered for another reason (see below). In the absence of any registration in the National Registry, the child is effectively undocumented (with limited access to healthcare, schooling etc). Absence of registration may occur for example when undocumented parents do not register their children (no data is available, however). Moreover, it is only in exceptional cases that people without lawful residence can be registered even as a parent (there is abundant legislation allowing civil registrars to chase for any type of fraud). Note the difference between the central registry of electronic records (containing civil status records such as birth, marriage, death) and the National Registry (recording the Population Registry for Belgian nationals, the Foreigners Registry, for non-Belgian nationals, people with a residence right of more than six months and the Waiting Register for applicants for international protection and other categories of foreigners (citizens of the European Union who request a declaration of registration, foreigners intending to marry or declare legal cohabitation)). It should be noted that registration in the National Registry is not equivalent to lawful residence. This means that some people may be registered in the National Registry without enjoying lawful residence, for example in the case of people without lawful residence who contract marriage or become parents. A birth certificate will always be delivered if a child is born on the Belgian territory, but the certificate may not mention the correct parent-child relationship. To register a foreign birth certificate, the authorities may request an excessive number of documents even if these are not required by law. Children born through surrogacy have faced difficulties in registering their birth as the authorities consider that the Belgian public order is violated, leaving the child without parentage, registration, or even stateless. There have been recent positive developments in some municipalities, albeit this is limited and varies across different regions. There are also reports of challenges in registering children in the National Registry, even when they have a birth certificate, if there are suspicions about a fraudulent acknowledgment of paternity. This could result in the child being stateless or at risk of statelessness if the mother cannot pass on her nationality. There are further difficulties for children born in Belgium from parents with a residence permit, but when parentage is established later. Since August 2023, the Immigration Office has exchanged correspondence with several municipalities in Belgium to withdraw the Belgian nationality of children born in Belgium to Palestinian parents who had acquired it on the basis that they were otherwise stateless (under Article 10 of the Belgian Nationality Code (CBN)). Their rationale is that these children have Palestinian nationality, and the Immigration Office is concerned that, if granted Belgian nationality, so-called ‘abuses’ of the family reunification procedure could take place. This is despite the fact that it is the civil registrar of the municipalities and, in the event of disagreement over the decision, the courts who are the competent authorities under Article 10 of the CBN. Indeed, the Constitution makes nationality-related issues the exclusive competency of the judiciary. The exclusive competence of the civil registrar to grant nationality, and of the public prosecutor to provide legal support to civil registrars, was reiterated by the Federal Ombudsman in a recommendation of January 2024. Over winter 2024, a new practice has emerged based on Article 10 of the Belgian Nationality Code (conditional attribution of Belgian nationality to children born in Belgium in case of risk of statelessness): some children born in Belgium to Paraguayan parents do not obtain Belgian nationality because (1) their parents have committed - according to the Immigration Office - fraud, that is : parents without lawful residence would give birth in Belgium allegedly only so that their children would have Belgian nationality in order to then be able to apply for legal residence based on family reunification (2) the children could easily obtain Paraguayan nationality through an ‘administrative formality with the diplomatic authorities’ (which is a condition set by the Belgian Nationality Code). This reasoning relies on an incorrect interpretation of the Code because (1) it misinterprets the principle fraus omnia corrumpit (i.e. the principle according to which the discovery of fraud invalidates a decision) and (2) it misinterprets the Paraguayan legislation which requires the parents of the child to settle in Paraguay prior any application for nationality for the child.	Justine Raymond, "Childhood Statelessness Prevention in the Migratory Context: The Experience of Syrian Asylum Seekers in Belgium", Statelessness Working Paper Series No. 2017/04.

				to run from the publication in the Belgian Moniteur and in two provincial newspapers of the decision. According to the Constitutional Court, this deadline violated the right of access to a court enshrined in Article 13 of the Constitution. The deadline for appealing the decision of the Court of Appeal to revoke Belgian nationality is not one month (article 23(5)). According to the Constitutional Court, it is not in itself discriminatory to provide that a child under the age of 18 automatically loses their Belgian nationality if the parent-child relationship with the Belgian parent is annulled for fraudulent recognition, whereas they would retain it after reaching majority. However, the child must be properly informed of the loss of nationality and must have access to the courts to challenge it, as the Court of Justice of the EU ruled in a similar case (Tjebbes). PRS.8.c		Are provisions on deprivation of nationality applied in practice? Have they been applied even where it results in (risk of) statelessness? If available, please provide any sources of data or information on cases that resulted in statelessness.		Yes, provisions on deprivation of nationality are applied in practice.	Response by the Minister of Justice to Parliamentary Question Koen Metsu , N° 2301, 10 July 2018. VAN DE PUTTE, M., "Terrorisme als grond voor vervallenverklaring van de Belgische nationaliteit", T. Vreemd. 2021, nr.1, p. 6
PRS.8.d		Are there safeguards in law and practice to prevent renunciation or other forms of voluntary loss of nationality from resulting in statelessness?	1961 Convention : Article 7 ECN : Articles 7 and 8	There is a safeguard against statelessness included in all provisions on voluntary loss of nationality.	Art. 22(1) of the Belgian Nationality Code
PRS.8.e		Are there any provisions on deprivation of nationality in a national security context (regardless of whether they could render a person stateless)? Please describe these provisions and if/how they are applied in practice.	Principles on Deprivation of Nationality Principle 4: States shall not deprive persons of nationality for the purpose of safeguarding national security. Where provisions exist, these should be interpreted narrowly and in accordance with international law standards. UNHCR Guidelines on Statelessness No.5 (2020) : Laws that permit deprivation of nationality on the grounds of terrorism should be publicly available and precise enough to enable individuals to understand the scope of impermissible conduct. CoE, PACE Resolution 2263 (2019) : States should review provisions allowing for deprivation of nationality on terrorism grounds in light of international human rights obligations, refrain from applying this measure and envisage and prioritise wider use of other counter-terrorism measures.	Articles 23, 23/1 and 23/2 BNC provide for deprivation of nationality on the following grounds : - Acting in serious violation of duties as Belgian nationals - conviction for certain grave crimes and punished by at least five years of imprisonment - conviction for a crime the commission of which was facilitated by the possession of Belgian nationality - conviction for a terrorist offense and punished by at least five years of imprisonment. These provisions are applied in practice.	Articles 23, 23/1 and 23/2 of the Belgian Nationality Code VAN DE PUTTE, M., "Terrorisme als grond voor vervallenverklaring van de Belgische nationaliteit", T. Vreemd. 2021, nr.1, p. 6
PRS.8.f		Are there any provisions on deprivation of nationality that directly or indirectly discriminate a person or group of persons on any ground prohibited under international law or that discriminate between nationals? Please describe these provisions and if/how they are applied in practice.	ICCPR : Article 26 1961 Convention : Article 9 ECN : Article 5 Principles on Deprivation of Nationality : Principle 6. Prohibited grounds for discrimination include race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, ethnicity, property, birth or inheritance, disability, sexual orientation or gender identity, or other real or perceived status, characteristic or affiliation. Each State is also bound by the principle of non-discrimination between its nationals. CoE, PACE Resolution 2263 (2019) : States should not discriminate between citizens on the basis of the way	Yes. The law protects those who have acquired their nationality from a parent or on the basis of birth in Belgium from certain forms of deprivation, so these provisions only apply to naturalised Belgians. 			in which they have acquired nationality, in order to avoid indirect discrimination against minorities.
PRS.8.g		Are there safeguards to prevent derivative loss of nationality (i.e., loss of nationality on the basis that a parent or a spouse has been deprived of that nationality)? Please describe the potential impact of deprivation on children and spouses.	1961 Convention: Article 6 CRC: Articles 2(2), 7 and 8 CEDAW: Article 9(1) Principles on Deprivation of Nationality: States must take all appropriate measures to ensure that the child is protected against all forms of discrimination or punishment on the basis of the status, activities, expressed opinions, or beliefs of the child's parents, legal guardians, or family members (Principle 9.7). The derivative loss of nationality is prohibited (Principle 9.8).	There is a safeguard against statelessness in all provisions permitting deprivation of Belgian nationality, except if nationality was acquired by fraud.
